

The following exterior features of the William and Mary Bull House, 222 South 16th Street, are among those protected by City Ordinance No. 9247 approved October 29, 2013:

- (1) Two-and-a-half story Shingle style house with limestone foundation, red brick first story, and wood shingle siding on the second story and attic gables.
- (2) Coved stretcher brick forming a string course around the base of the brick facades, and a filleted brick course located above at the height of the limestone window sills.
- (3) Shingles arranged in a wave pattern in the front porch gable and in the area above the Palladian window on the east gable.
- (4) All original windows, most of which are multi-paned, double-hung units.
- (5) Imposing hipped roof with cross gables.
- (6) Front (east) gable with second story porch below.
- (7) Large Palladian window with radiating straight and curved muntins in the arched sash.
- (8) Porch under the gable with engaged arch, brackets and Queen Anne-style columns.
- (9) Two-story bay windows with porches above them, centered under the north and south cross gables.
- (10) The north bay window in polygonal form.
- (11) The south bay window in semicircular form.
- (12) Each porch has a balustrade with wooden square balusters.
- (13) Attic dormers with arched roofs—one facing north and one facing south.
- (14) Downspouts decorated with serpentine “x” appliqués in many locations.
- (15) Front porch wrapping to the north and south facades and around an engaged domed tower with octagonal faces.
- (16) Single and paired Queen Anne columns resting on limestone-capped brick plinths with coved brick ledges.
- (17) Vaulted porch ceiling clad with stained beaded board.
- (18) Balustrade with cast iron panels and broad limestone caps.
- (19) Paneled oak front door with arched beveled-glass light.
- (20) Four tall brick chimneys with vertical reveals, cross shaped at the bases, brickwork stepped back at the chimney tops, and decorative anchors in starburst and serpentine “x” shapes.
- (21) Stylistically sympathetic porte-cochere on south side of house.
